

MEDICAL COUNTERMEASURES

MCM or Medical Countermeasures are the different forms of medicines or medicine-related supplies used for detecting a disease or preventing or protecting patients from any likely disease/health ailment that results out of threat/imbalance caused due to chemical, radiological, nuclear or biological threats, or other forms of natural disasters or infectious diseases.

Medical Countermeasures are imperative at times of public health emergencies, as they largely help in saving lives that desperately need critical medical help. These Medical Countermeasures are strategically planned and executed under Emergency Response Systems of local, state, tribal or territorial operations. Healthcare professionals and public health officials aid in seamlessly executing such emergency Medical Countermeasures.